F&M Trust St. Thomas Changes Management

The Tuscarora Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors recently said “Good Bye” to a valuable board member and event committee member, Dana Kaiser (right) of F&M Trust. Dana recently moved from the St. Thomas branch of F&M Trust to a Chambersburg branch with F&M Trust. Friday August 29th Dana introduced the new St. Thomas office manager, Tina Bricker (left), to TACC’s Event Committee. Tina is jumping right into serving the business community of the Tuscarora region and plans to volunteer at Town-fest September 27th. The chamber wishes Dana well with her career, and will miss her positive energy and hard work ethic!

The annual Mercersburg Beer and Wine Festival will enjoy its inaugural session Saturday September 27th, hosted by the Tuscarora Area Chamber of Commerce at Mercersburg Park 405 S. WHITETAIL RESORT MAKES CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS

With Winter fast approaching, employees at Whitetail are busy implementing capital improvements in preparation for the 2014-2015 Season. Over 2.5million dollars have gone into upgrades that will ultimately enhance the guest's over-all experience. The list of capital projects includes: upgrades to the existing snowmaking system, Child Care Center and Kid's Mountain Camp facilities, to name just a few.

This year's snowmaking improvements include 20 new fully automated Techno Alpine Fan Guns on the Upper and Lower Angel Drop trails. These new guns replace snowmaking equipment that has been in use for many years along those trails.

The Kid's Mountain Camp facility has grown by over 3000 square feet. New space was generated through a 40' x 40' addition on the east side of the existing building. Additional space was gained by relocating the Child Care Center to the lower level of the Main Lodge. The area previously known as the "Down Under" has been completely remodeled to provide a fun new space for Child Care.

Our Rental Equipment has grown with the addition of new snowboards and snowboard boots, as well as 1000 new helmets and 400 sets of ski poles. Other improvements to the Rental Facility include a fresh coat of paint and new flooring.

This year our guests will be greeted with new easy to read digital signs in various locations around the resort. These signs will display helpful information, news and events about the resort.

Other improvements include all new furniture in Marketplace and the Upper Mezzanine, which will provide increased seating capacity; and new paved parking and driveway areas for travel convenience.

"Whitetail is very pleased to have these improvement projects underway," said Whitetail Resort President and General Manager, Don MacAskill. "We are always striving to improve our resort and our guest satisfaction." In addition to the capital improvement projects, Whitetail Resort is busy with summer activities including operations at Whitetail Golf Resort and Dusty Wissmath's Fly Fishing School. Whitetail also offers full service venues for Special Events such as banquets, weddings, and other large gatherings. LOCAL ROTARIANS HONORED TO MEET ROTARY INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT

Recently, members of the Rotary Club of Mercersburg attended a dinner at Green Grove Gardens honoring the Rotary International President Gary Huang. The dinner was hosted by the Rotary Club of Waynesboro with members of the Rotary Clubs of Greencastle and Chambersburg in attendance. In all, three hundred and thirty one Rotary members and their guests attended the dinner. Pictured left to right: First row: RI President Gary Huang and his wife Corinna. Second row: Eric Holtzman, (President of the Rotary Club of Mercersburg), David Bell, Danny Bristol, Jason Piatt, (7360 District Governor), Liza Main and Kathy Hartung.

Manager's Corner™: Double Your Training Take Aways

by Liz Weber, CMC, CSP

I, of course, love leadership training. However, I find it even more valuable when there's an easy way to double your training take aways without additional cost.

At the conclusion of a leadership training project with a client recently, one of the senior managers said, "In order to keep this learning going, I'm going to pull my notes once a quarter just to see what else I should be working on." I wasn't quite sure what he meant by his comment. When I asked for a clarification, he provided a brilliant insight for me, "Liz, quite often I find that some of the notes I make during training sessions or a conference workshop only make sense to me. They're not even related to the topic you or the speaker may be making at that time, but something you just said, spurred an idea in me that caused me to jot a note to myself. Later, when I look back through my notes, I often find good ideas for new techniques or things I could or should do to improve my outlook, productivity, or management skills -- and they may have nothing to do with what you just presented."

His insight resonated with me as I often find myself doing the same thing. If the training or presentation support materials are developed well, there is often little need for me to take many supplemental topic-specific notes. However, as I listen to the presenter and consider how to apply what the presenter is sharing, I invariably jot very specific notes relevant to my company, my team, and myself. These notes are typically specific to one of our projects, clients, or to a team member's task. Often these non-speaker/trainer specific notes are hidden gold and not only increase productivity, but obviously double the value of the training and presentations I attend.

Why not pull out your old training and workshop notes? What gold can you mine and apply as you double your training take aways?

Sigrid S. Reynolds

"Conococheague: Global Aspects on the Edge of the American Frontier"

This presentation will examine life on the Conococheague Frontier in its global context. It will focus on trade goods, diseases, as well as political tensions and the differences between the Seven Years War in America, Africa, India and the Philippines.

Sigrid is a retired high school history teacher. She taught in Advance Placement US, European, and World History at Washington High School, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Her training in anthropology and history blended nicely to form the basis for teaching the relatively new discipline of World History. She is a life member of the World History Association and serves in leadership roles for the College Board's AP World Readings. She also served on the College Board committee that revised the current AP World History curriculum, and she served on SAT II World History Test Development Committee for the Educational Testing Service. Sigrid says, "Now, CI lets me play with real history!"
